June 2011

Okay, what is going on? How did I end up as president? Did Carl really change his mind or is there something fishy going on here? Here's what happened. After Carl pulled his Brett Favre imitation, the board went back to the nominees at the banquet and voted in the only candidate willing to accept the position at this time. I feel the need to justify my appointment so here are my qualifications: I'm totally bi-partisan as I ski and board; I drink Jack thus leaving more beer and wine for everyone else on the bus – I'm not a mean drunk, just an obnoxious one; and I can talk stupid with the best of them – see qualification 2. There is good news and good news out of all of this. First the board remains intact so they will not allow me to screw things up too badly. The thought of me being Prez has scared a couple people into coming forward to be willing to accept the position in the near future.

I realize that I have huge shoes to fill. Carl and the board have done a great job in the past few years. Our club is in a very good position compared to many others in the Midwest who's numbers are decreasing. Our membership numbers have stayed relatively steady and our members are willing to step up and lead trips and help out where needed. This is a great club and I intend on continuing to move it in a positive direction. I think the reason a lot of clubs are struggling is that they continue to operate as they always have for years. You must evolve with the times or become extinct. The board is looking at creative ways to save money on trips and get our name out to the public. We are looking at a trip for the '12-'13 season to a place we've never been before and a form of transportation that we've never used.

We are currently planning trips for the upcoming season. We were in Chicago a few weekends ago and got some good ideas, worked out some details on trips and gathered some quotes. We would also appreciate your ideas and thoughts! Board meetings are open to all members. I will try to include a schedule of meetings in future newsletters. Feel free to contact me at any time, my contact info is in this newsletter. Don't forget about the picnic coming up in August! Hope to see you there!
